Mr. Peruchi is in the lead easily as a fun maker, and by his own peculiar methods scores a decided success.

"A Midnight Marriage." It is a society drama and has been constructed on original lines with a touch of real humor that is at all times refreshing. This accounts for the fact that it is one of the greatest successes of the stage at the present time.

Recital Monday Night.
The elocutionary recital at Library

Chelso D. Peruchi and Miss Mabel Gypzene, who will be in Pensacola next week.

He is irrepressible, mischievous, and broadly farcical at all times and invariably secures a laugh in his lines. Mr. Peruchi is supported by Miss Mabel Gypzene, the bright and dainty little comedienne who is bound to make an instantaneous hit. She is womanly and sweet. Her gaiety is infectious, her smile winning, her manner delightful, and the transitions from lightness to impetuosity in different characters she portrays is clearly shown. The management has surrounded the leads with a competent company of recognized artists. The play selected for Monday night is

Hall Monday night by Miss J. B. Barnett promises to be a rare treat for all who love elocutionary art. The entertainment will be under the auspices of the Gadsden street Epworth League and the program will be interspersed with local musical talent. The public is cordially invited.

UNUSUAL ACTIVITY AT PENSACOLA NAVY YARD

Despite Fact that Nearly One Third of Employees Have Been Laid Off.

NEW BUILDINGS ERECTED AND OTHER RECENT IMPROVEMENTS
—WORK ON WAR VESSELS—
THE WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY PLANT AT THE YARD.

In spite of the fact that congress failed to pass the deficiency bill early in the session and that about one-third of the workmen have been laid off at the navy yard, remarkable scenes of unusual activity seem to prevail at that place.

At the present time there are engaged in various occupations in the neighborhood of four hundred men, and the handsome new buildings under construction are being pushed rapidly to completion.

The new $100,000.00 equipment building structure whose imposing and magnificent outlines do credit at the yard was shipped in from the north. The navy department has decided that the juniper wood growing in this state is just as good as white cedar, which is now being used, but the juniper cannot be obtained as there are no mills in the state that handle the timber to any great extent.

Wireless Telegraph Station.

One of the most notable features of this interesting place is the wireless telegraph station; a practical development of the highest type of scientific thought; an arrangement of most complicated and mechanical devices, that have practically annihilated space; a machine that enables man to almost instantly communicate with other stations thousands of miles distant in less than a second.

The station at the navy yard is equipped with the DeForest System of wireless telegraphy which is recognized by the government as superior to the Marconi, or any other system of the kind.

This plant is designated as a ten kilowatt power station, or measured in general terms, is equal to about 7.46 horse power. The little machine called the Electrolitic, that receives the delicate magnetic waves, has a motor generator, generating alternat-to the most modern style of architecture will in the course of a few weeks be ready for occupancy. In this building will be manufactured all of the mechanical appliances that are required to outfit a "man of war."

Only a short distance from the equipment building, looking north, can be seen, climbing skyward, a wonderful example of twentieth century masonry in the form of a huge brick chimney which at the present time rears itself to a height of one hundred and thirty feet with twenty feet still to be added, capping the lofty structure off at a height of one hundred and fifty feet.

New Power House.

Around this chimney has just been completed the foundation for the new power house, from which will be furnished power to run all of the mechanical and engineering departments, supplying also electric lights for the yard.

The power house of course will be built as complete, architecturally and mechanically, as art, science and human skill can make it, and will add one more touch of beauty to this interesting place.

A new telephone system has been installed recently giving service to about ninety phones and making direct connections with the long distance lines, thereby giving the navy yard a hitherto unenjoyed service. Among the many vessels now laying up for repairs are a few that are well known in the history of the Spanish-American war. One of considerable note is the Spanish cruiser Isla de Luzon, captured on the memorable morning of May 1, 1898, when Admiral George Dewey steamed into Manila Bay and sunk or captured the entire Spanish fleet. A patch directly underneath the porthole of this historical vessel remains, a visible mark that tells of the great sea fight, one of the most notable in the history of naval warfare.

Did Good Service.

The Gloucester, which did some excellent service during the Spanish-American war in Cuban waters, is another one of Uncle Sam's war vessels that is worthy of mention. Previous to the outbreak of the war the Gloucester was the private yacht of the great financier, J. Pierpont Morgan, and this boat, among several others that were purchased and transformed into fighting vessels, became the property of the government. It is stated that an appropriation of $50,000 has been requested for repairs to this vessel.

The water front as well as every other part of the grounds, present many interesting objects to the eye of the visitor, this fact being evidenced by the number of tourists that throng the place daily.

To Use Florida Timber.

An authoritative statement was given out by one of the officials in regard to the state of Florida supplying the great amount of timber used there in ship building, that should open the eyes of enterprising capitalists of Pensacola. All of the timber now used ing currents at 110 volts which are sent through a transformer that increases the power to 30,000 volts.

Break the Ether.

The alternating current is broken across a large spar cap which goes up the "Aerial" wire in the form of dots and dashes, the dots and dashes breaking up the electricity or ether in the air, and traveling thence in all directions, the strength of which can be regulated by patent coils called "tuners." Ships tuning their instruments for different magnetic waves, can pick up various stations, each individual wave having a different tune.

The receiving apparatus is of such a sensitive nature that waves from Dry Tortugas, which is only a 2 kilowatt station, have been received. Of course the waves from stations of greater power are more easily distinguished, the power of each being regulated by the motor capacity.

Signal Long Distances.

Points at a distance of 1450 miles can be easily communicated with, and messages are often caught from such distant stations as San Juan, Cape Cod, Kansas City, St. Louis and places all along the Atlantic coast.

The messages are received through the same head gear as used in telephone exchanges and the Morse telephone code of dots and dashes with slight changes, is the method used in receiving and sending messages.

The two masts in the illustration shown have ten wires stretched from one to the other. These wires are known as the "Aerial," and are connected with the instruments in the station below, instantly reporting the delicate waves as they are received. The greater the height of the masts, the better the service. They must also be away from any trees or high roofs that would tend to obstruct the passage of the magnetic waves.

I can give it unqualified recommendation. 25c, 50c, $1.00. Sold by all druggists."
